Description:

Abandoned cemeteries, rotten gravestones and the creaking of beams - when the echo of past lives appears, the skeleton is not far away. It rises from the depths of long-forgotten crypts - silent, motionless and yet disturbingly present. A skeleton is simply part of every successful Halloween backdrop. As a symbol of death, it is an indispensable element that should not be missing in any gruesome production.

With a size of approx. 150 cm, the Halloween skeleton from Europalms offers a wide range of options for spooky decorations. Although the figure remains mute and motionless, this is precisely where its fascination begins. Placed in half-open doors, draped on old chairs or seemingly carelessly leaning against a wall, it gives the impression that it could start moving at any moment. Particularly ingenious: The arms can be bent at any angle and remain stable in their position. Whether raised defensively, stretched out to reach for a victim or theatrically crossed over the skull: this creates individual, lively-looking poses.

The timeless creepy element can either be placed on a stand or staged as a hanging figure using a loop on the skull.
